BLOODSHED MAY RESULT.

The Stationing of Canadian Customs Officials Causes Indignation.

Tacoma, Wash., March 7.—Great indignation prevails among the 10,000 men who are scattered along the Skaguay and Dyke trails, at the stationing of Canadian customs officers at the summit of the passes. Now even the food which the Klondikers will consume while boat-building at Lake Bennett must pay duty. So must every pack animal owned by the freighters, and their feed for each trip to the lakes. At Lake Bennett rental is to be charged for tenting ground. Logs to build cabins will cost $1, and logs for throwed or boatbuilding 25 cents each. Twenty-five dollars is charged for every dog.

Advices received today by steamer Farallon say that the Klondikers could scarcely fare worse if the Canadian officers moved down to Skaguay and Dyke, and charged duty on every American article unloaded.

Last week the Klondikers along both trails held meetings at which threats were made of marching together past the customs stations, and refusing to pay duty. Serious trouble seems in sight, though it is hoped that the presence of United States troops at Skaguay will prevent bloodshed. The collection of duty on dogs, packhorses and food, and the charge for logs and fuel at the lakes are among the increased charges just put into effect in an apparent endeavor to force all Klondikers to outfit in the British Columbia towns. It is feared on Puget Sound that the Canadians have secured the whiphand in this respect.

Inspector Belcher, with twenty policemen, at Chilkooot Pass, and Capt. Strickland at White Pass with twenty more, began collecting duty on the summit of the passes. Late in January a nugget valued at $1,000 was found on claim 23, Eldorado Creek, owned by Alexander McDonald.

A CHANCE FOR OUR HORSES.

An International Show to Be Held in London.

New York, March 7.—For the first time American horses can compete with the English show horses. This will give the owners of the champions in the different classes an opportunity to see if their champions are the equals of the English blue-ribbon horses in the same classes.

The following circular just sent out from London explains itself:

The Crystal Palace Horse Show, London, England, will be held on May 25, 26, and 27 next, beginning in the same week as the Derby is run for at Epsom, the great race falling on May 25.

In order to introduce an international element into the exhibition, and in hopes of affording the possibility of a comparison between the best horses of the two countries, the directors of the Crystal Palace propose making several classes for American-bred horses only. The services of an American judge of position will, if possible, be secured to award the prizes in these classes. The owners of American horses, however, are invited to compete in any other classes of horses for which they are qualified by the rules, which place no restriction whatsoever on the nationality of the competitors except in the American classes. American horses, however, will be judged by English judges.

With the view of inducing American exhibitors to compete the White Star line is prepared to convey horses to Liverpool and back to New York at a specially low rate in their magnificent new twin-screw steamship Cymric, the newest and largest freight boat afloat, which will sail from New York on April 12.

The equipment of American horses for the international show will be personally met by Mr. Vero Shaw, the manager of the Crystal Palace horse show, at Liverpool, and will be accompanied by him per special London and North-western train direct to the Crystal Palace, the train starting almost from the ship's side, so there will be no delay.

The following rates will be charged for conveyance of horses direct from Liverpool to the Crystal Palace: One horse, $12.75; two horses, the property of the same owner, $20; three horses, the property of the same owner, $30; the return journey to Liverpool from the Crystal Palace being at one half the above rates, provided the horses possess a certificate that they are unsound.

"Big Six" and Jack McCormick. The "All-Star" card prepared for the Borek Club's next entertainment at Germania Mennecherer Hall, Baltimore, Friday evening, has been added to with an exceptionally strong heavyweight bout that will introduce Baltimore's heavyweight, "Big Six," and Jack McCormick, of Philadelphia, the ex-heavyweight amateur champion of the East. He has never been defeated by either amateur or professional, and is a good, strong boxer. His last appearance, in Baltimore was as an amateur, when he defeated Con. Connelley, who bested George Wannevitch. The two men are evenly matched, and it will be one of the best heavyweight bouts seen in Baltimore for some time. They will be the second preliminary on a card that will include Jim Jany and George Russell, of Wilmington, who fought him a ten-round draw, and Joe Gans, who fought Tommy Shortell, the conqueror of Jack Donnelly.

Boxers in Training. Joe Gans, who is to meet Tommy Shortell at Germania Mennecherer Hall, Baltimore, Friday night, as well as Jim Jany, another of the Herford's champions, who is on the bill for the same evening to face George Russell, of Wilmington, an old rival, have started in to training for their bouts at Barrager's Rooming House, Back River. In the party will be "Big Six," who is matched to meet Jack McCormick the same evening in one of the preliminary bouts. Tommy Shortell, who is under the management of Jack Dougherty, the boxer, of Ed McPartland, will put in his kicks at College Point, L. I. He will be assisted by Tommy West and the colony of boxers at that place. Russell will train in Wilmington at the Warren A. C. McCormick, the heavyweight, always takes to the sands of Atlantic City. Charlie McKee will be in the party to urge him along.

THE IRISH WOULD FIGHT.

The American Flag Causes a Great Show of Enthusiasm.

New York, March 7.—More than 1,000 Irishmen and Irishwomen crowded into the Academy of Music last night to do honor to the memory of Robert Emmet. Before the evening was far advanced the demonstration was twofold.

When the Irish Volunteers marched on the stage with the Stars and Stripes and the flag of Erin the band struck up "The Star Spangled Banner." The cheers that followed drowned the music. "Hurrah for Old Glory" rang out a voice. The man carrying the national emblem waved the flag, and the people were wrought up to a high pitch of enthusiasm. Several minutes elapsed before quiet was restored.

The climax of the demonstration was reached during the speech of Conner, man Rowland Blinnemaher Mahony. He was speaking of Puritanism existing in this country, and which, he said, was always arrayed against the Irish. "These degenerate descendants of the original Puritans—no, I cannot call them degenerates, because they have too much contempt for their ancestors to admit of possible degeneration—are against us," he said; "but we are here to stay and to fight for the dear old Stars and Stripes while the blood of Erin flows through our veins."

He stopped long enough to grasp the flag and draw it across his breast. The cheering was terrific.

"If war is declared tomorrow," he continued, "the Clan-na-Gael band and will furnish 20,000 well-armed and well-trained troops to fight for this flag."

There were cries from the audience of "Right you are!" "Free Cuba!" and "Long live freedom." Once again the band struck up the national anthem, and the cheering continued for several minutes.

The next outburst occurred during the eulogy of Ireland's great patriot and statesman Mahony. He had just spoken of the positions of prominence in foreign lands to which Irishmen of humble origin have arisen through sheer force of intellect.

"Ireland has furnished prime ministers for Austria," he said, "and prime ministers for Spain."

The word "Spain" was no sooner heard than there was a shower of hisses. The speaker stopped then recovering himself quickly, shouted at the top of his voice: "In answer to this demonstration I say that the Irish in America are not only capable of, but willing to, counteract the influence of the Irish in Spain."

This led to another outburst of cheers, shouts and applause.

A DUCK ATE GOLD.

Five Dollars' Worth of Nuggets Taken From the Gizzard.

New York, March 7.—An assay conducted by himself has netted E. V. Bonnell a small fortune of $5 worth of pure gold taken from the gizzard of a duck he bought of Butler Dunne a few days ago. As the bird cost but $1, the Bonnells are $4 and a duck dinner to the good.

Twenty-three small nuggets were taken from the strong-box of the duck, which came from Colorado, it is said. The doubt as to the genuineness of the gold has been dispelled by Bonnell, who pounded the nuggets flat and tested them with acid. Then he weighed the product to determine the value.

There were nine ducks in the original consignment, but this is the only one that developed a "pay streak." The remaining three were thoroughly prospected by Mount Vernon miners, but not a trace of color could be found.

Mr. Bonnell will endeavor to locate the place where his gold-lined duck came, and if successful he may erect ten-stamp duck crusher there and get rich quickly.
